Feature Request: Add Japanese

Naoto Hieda

Preface

Nov 6, 2021

I'd like to do participate but I don't write in English so I'd like to do something in Japanese (break the word count).

Nov 17, 2021

I'm super behind but trying to catch up with the research. since I use javascript (I don't want to use python) I might remix a project like this: kylestetz/metaphorpsum. The way of using template sentences would be an easy start for conversion between English and Japanese

Nov 19, 2021

some weird things I tried:

en: 'In recent years, a pump is a seedy twist. This could be, or perhaps a cheese is a pudgy Sunday. If this was somewhat unclear, the first glary clave is, in its own way, a lotion. However, a postage is a dimming title.'

ja: “近年、パンプス (ひもや金具がなく, 甲のあいた靴) は (果物などが) 種の多い〈糸・なわなど〉‘を’『よる』, より合わせる (糸・なわなどに)…’を’よる《+名 +into(in)+名》である。恐らく、強いて言えば『チーズ』は小さくてずんぐりした『日曜日』(キリスト教の安息日で週の第1日;《略》Sun.)である。それが不明瞭であれば、初めての GL A RY cleave の過去形は、ある意味では 外用水薬; 化粧水, ローションだ。しかし、『郵便料金』, 郵送料は『薄暗い』, ほの暗い〈C〉(…の)『題名』, 題目, 題《+of(to)+名》である。”

First I modified metaphorpsum to be able to simply output a random text on the console. Then I added Japanese translation to the template sentences. By overriding actions of Sentencer, random nouns/adjectives are stored on the stack, translated into Japanese using ejdict.

Challenges:

- Because ejdict simply outputs texts from an English-Japanese dictionary, I cannot get clean results (in the case above, pump should translate into パンプス (well, I do not think it is right, though) but instead it outputs パンプス (ひもや金具がなく, 甲のあいた靴)). This actually looks funny and I like it, but the resulting text is way longer than the English text.

- When the word is not in the dictionary, what should happen? I tried using hepburn to romanize the word, but it failed (e.g., GL ア RY in the text above). I do not know if I keep it like this because it is a bit too much of a reminiscent of superdry.
- When the English template sentence has a same time of action that occurs twice or more times (e.g., the {{ adjective }} {{ noun }} comes from {{ an_adjective }} {{ noun }}) it has to be distinguished from each other because in the Japanese translation, the order might be flipped (but after all, who cares)

Next steps:

- Add more templates. Even some kind of “scenes”. the choreography of text.
- Slightly clean up the output from ejdict. Also if there are several interpretations, the result can be randomly chosen (currently I just take the first sentence).
- Adding sentiment analysis or even simple word2vec may be fun because I don't think it's often done with Japanese.

here are my (close to final) results: english | japanese

I looked into the English-Japanese dictionary (ejdict) further. The output of ejdict looks like this make

----

… ‘を' 『作る』, 製造する, 建造する
 … ‘を' 『整える』, 用意する
 … ‘を' 生じさせる, もたらす, 引き起こす
 〈金など〉 ‘を' 得る, もうける, 〈財産など〉 ‘を' 作る
 《行為・動作を表す名詞を目的語にして》… ‘を' 『する』, 行う
 (ある状態・形態に)… ‘を' 『する』
 《『make』 + 『名』 + do》 〈人・動物など〉 ‘に' 強制して(…)させる

since it's very cluttered and difficult to simply replace an English word with the output of ejdict, I started writing regular expressions to clean it up

I spent an hour or so with regular expressions (and the result is still not perfect). Then I thought, what if I make a feature vector of an English word based on this process - e.g., if the text contains ... turn on a flag, and another flag for <<. *>> - which effectively represents how cluttered the word is in an English-Japanese dictionary (since I read an issue about word2vec on <https://github.com/ml5js/ml5-library/issues/1238> I was looking for an alternative way to find words). This is how the program chooses a word; it simply stores the last word's feature vector, randomly picks a few words into a pool, and finds the word that has the closest feature vector. Every chapter I increased the size of the pool, so I expect that the first chapter looks more random, and the later chapters should have similar words based on how cluttered the word is in the E-J dictionary (note that only nouns/adjectives are randomized in the sentences and the rest is based on the template).

Currently the amount of sentence templates are very small so you can see a lot of repetitions - I might work on it but it won't be the core of the project. Now I think my interest is, as a Japanese, since we are asked to look up dictionaries a lot as most of the English education in Japan is based on reading, how it shapes Japanese people's competency in English and how I can intervene it.

for now here are the final results, adding more sentence templates
